De La Salle North Catholic High School serves a racially diverse community of capable, interested and motivated college-bound students, primarily from North/Northeast Portland. The school opened its doors to students in September 2001 in response to the dropout crisis in Oregon. The majority of students live below the federal poverty line, which means they cannot afford to pay for the cost of education through tuition. De La Salle has a Corporate Internship Program in which the students work one day each week at local area businesses to defray the cost of education. Fees for sports simply are not within the reach of most of the students. MAF is pleased to offer help that provides quality sports programs for the students. MAF funds cover areas such as gym rental and officiating fees for the year.

By staying true to its 1902 roots, Washington Trust Bank has been rewarded with success in its 107 years of providing banking, trust and investment services throughout the Northwest. After all, Washington Trust recognizes that relationship banking will always prevail over transactional banking, especially here in Portland, where our team of highly experienced, local professionals navigates issues that directly affect decisions in commercial banking, private banking and wealth management. So, in a world “where everything old is new again,” you can count on Washington Trust Bank to be consistent with its old-fashioned way of doing business.
